In January 2001, ABS published an Information Paper, ABS Views on Remoteness, (Cat. No. 1244.0), seeking the views of users and potential users on five proposals for change to the Australian Standard Geographical Classification (ASGC). This paper summarises the feed back received from the first paper and responds to some commonly asked questions and suggestions. The paper also describes the changes which ABS will make in response to that feedback and further clarifies the purposes for which the new Remoteness classification should, and should not, be used.
4613.0	Australia's Environment: Issues and Trends, 2001 ($38.00)
Presents a broad selection of environmental statistics and information which illustrate topical environmental issues that affect the future of Australia as a nation. Each year the subject matter covered will vary, as new environmental issues emerge or more current data sources become available. Data and information are derived from ABS collections and surveys and also from a wide range of non-ABS organisations and agencies. Each year the publication will explore some of the relationships that exist between our use of the natural environment in Australia for socio-economic benefit and the impacts that some of these activities have on our ecology and stocks of natural resources. Broad environmental themes from which specific issues will be selected include land use; consumption and waste; marine, estuarine and freshwater systems; and people and the environment. Examples of specific issues covered in the first edition include: agriculture and the environment; international shipping and the introduction of exotic organisms; the conservation status of native fish and; the influence of age, education and income on environmental attitudes and behaviour. All statistical information and supporting text will be presented with the non-specialist audience in mind, as the publication aims to meet the information needs of a wide audience.
